

BIOGRAPHY

Felix JF Herth graduated at the University of Freiburg and was trained in Karlsruhe, Heidelberg, Germany and Boston, USA. Actual he is Professor of Pneumology at the University of Heidelberg.

His Department of Pulmonary and Respiratory Critical Care Medicine focuses on the diagnosis and therapy of respiratory tract diseases such as lung emphysema, cystic fibrosis, fibrosing alveolitis, and pulmonary hypertension; on non-invasive ventilatory support for patients with respiratory deficiency or failure; on sleep related respiratory disorders. An outstanding expertise is provided in all fields of bronchoscopy, taking a lead position in the development of devices for diagnostic and therapeutic purposes.

His research interest is Lung cancer, interstitial lung diseases and Interventional Bronchoscopy. Felix Herth is one of the European Health Leaders working closely with the European Health commission.